Where the Mind is Without Fear...

Rabindranath Tagore (1861-1941) was the author of Gitanjali and its 'profoundly sensitive, fresh and beautiful verse'. He became the first non-European to win the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1913.

This poem is one of his vastly read and discussed poems. It was originally composed in Bengali and later he himself translated it into English. This poem is from his Nobel Prize winning anthology 'Gitanjali'.

Tagore lived during the time when India was ruled by the British. In this poem, besides political freedom from British, Tagore also appeals to God for social, educational and economic freedom for the people of India.

Where the mind is without fear and the head is held high
Where knowledge is free
Where the world has not been broken up into fragments
By narrow domestic walls
Where words come out from the depth of truth
Where tireless striving stretches its arms towards perfection
Where the clear stream of reason has not lost its way
Into the dreary desert sand of dead habit
Where the mind is led forward by Thee
Into ever-widening thought and action
Into that heaven of freedom, my Father, let my country awake.

– Rabindranath Tagore

♦ What does the poet pray to the Almighty for?

♦ What are 'reason' and 'dead habit' compared to?

♦ What does the poet wish for?

- narrow domestic walls : division on the basis of religion, caste, class and colour in societies and between countries of the world
- tireless striving : continuous efforts and struggle
- stretches its arm : aims at achieving a goal
- dead habit : old traditional rituals and customs that are harmful
- ever-widening : forever broadening one's outlook
- heaven of freedom : condition of total freedom of good thoughts, good words and good deeds, while respecting those of others
